Aberdeenshire Council submission of 21 March 2019

Aberdeenshire Council Schools know and are able to identify their designated first aider in accordance with requirements, but this information is not held centrally. Schools keep track of the training requirements for first aid provision in their school and when this is required to be refreshed or first aiders replaced. The wider first aid skills (those in addition to designated first aiders) that individuals hold within an establishment would not be captured with consistency across the Local Authority.

For clarity it would be helpful to use consistent terminology when referring to first aiders in schools as this will not necessarily be (and in many cases is not) a 'Named Person'.
